John,

I also like the email documentation. I think this is an important and useful discussion, so I hope you don't mind if I drag it out a bit longer. At some point, we can use to expand the discussion to include Mark, Sania, and others. See embedded comments below for suggested path forward.

Hi Tim,

I thought it best to write back so I didn't confuse things. I am amenable to leaving that paragraph out, it's your call. Here are some thoughts:

If you decide you want the simple table on mass error of precursors, I could generate this for you this morning.

Just let me know if you want me to do anything—

John,

Thanks for these edits comments. All are good point of clarification. There remains one sticking point for me that I would like to explore some more.

Hi Tim and Kate,

I edited the attached in track-changes mode. Here are details you should be aware of:

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.
- 6.
- 7.
- 8.

John,

Can you take a look at my results and table footnote edits to be sure that my descriptions are correct/accurate?

Thanks.
